Through the journey of our lives, our ways are lighted by lamps which help us see the world about us more clearly, to appraise the present and to prepare for the future. These lamps may take many forms: an experience through which we learn; a childhood friendship; perhaps an association with some older person. For each one the significant varies. But now as we leave Middlebury College we find that this phase of our education has lighted a portion of the paths of each of us. From its light we have gained not only the brightness of friendship but also the enduring light of understanding and knowledge.
WALDO HUNTLEY HEINRICHCS CAME TO MIDDLEBURY IN 1934, BRINGING WITH HIM A PAST RICH WITH EXPERIENCES; HE IS NOW LEAVING MIDDLEBURY, RETIRING AFTER TWENTY-ONE YEARS OF FAITHFUL AND LOYAL SERVICE TO THE COLLEGE.

IT WOULD BE HARD TO FIND ANOTHER PROFESSOR WHO HAS TAUGHT AS MANY DIFFERENT MIDDLEBURY STUDENTS AS HE HAS. THROUGH HIS INSPIRING LEADERSHIP AND TEACHING IN CONTEMPORARY CIVILIZATION, STUDENTS HAVE BEEN BROUGHT TO A GREATER AWARENESS OF THE PAST, THE PRESENT, AND THE FUTURE, ALL BROUGHT CLOSER BY THE ENRICHMENT OF PERSONAL EXPERIENCES AND ANECDOTES. HIS LECTURE ON WORLD WAR II, NOW A TRADITION AT MIDDLEBURY, WILL BE LONG REMEMBERED BY THE MANY WHO HAVE ATTENDED IN THE YEARS PAST.

BUT HE WILL NOT BE REMEMBERED SOLELY FOR HIS ACHIEVEMENTS IN THE ACADEMIC FIELD. HIS ENTHUSIASTIC AND UNTIRING SUPPORT AT COLLEGE ATHLETICS, ESPECIALLY THE SKI EVENTS AT CARNIVAL TIME, IS FAMILIAR TO ALL.

HIS FRIENDLY SMILE . . . HIS CHEERY WAVE OR GREETING . . . HIS INTEREST IN AND SUPPORT OF STUDENT ACTIVITIES . . . THESE ARE JUST SOME OF THE THINGS THAT WE WILL REMEMBER.

AS ONE SMALL TRIBUTE AND AS OUR WAY OF SAYING “THANK YOU,” THE CLASS OF 1956 DEDICATES THIS YEARBOOK TO WALDO HEINRICHCS.

THE FACULTY... WHO HAVE TOILED MANY YEARS IN THEIR PURSUIT OF THE LIGHT OF KNOWLEDGE AND THEIR ENDEAVOR TO INSTILL IT WITHIN THE MINDS OF THE GENERATIONS OF STUDENTS WHO PASS THROUGH MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE.
There are times when a college president wishes that the student year book could convey in pictures and prose the intellectual growth that actually does take place in a student between matriculation and graduation. The proverbial visitor from Mars would get perhaps a curious impression of a liberal education if his only source of information was a casual perusal of this college pictorial review of campus life. Yet if he studies our Kaleidoscope with care and discrimination he would find, I think, the three pillars of a Middlebury education — the playing fields, the classroom, and the chapel. A well rounded development of body, mind and spirit is and will be a proper goal for your college to strive to achieve for Middlebury students. It is my belief that in the years ahead, when glances at this 1956 Kaleidoscope bring to mind your college years, you will find in your memories more than recollections of the good times and the work and fun of extracurricular activities. I think you will recall people and events, books, and mental experiences that in retrospect you will label significant milestones in your march toward intellectual maturity. If I am right, then Middlebury will always have and deserve your affection, and those of us who remain in the classrooms and offices of the campus will find satisfaction in our pleasant duties.

PRESIDENT SAMUEL S. STRATTON.
One of the earliest acts of Creation was the command “Let there be Light.” The same phrase should be the motto of every educational institution which, like Middlebury College, seeks to train young men and women in wisdom as well as knowledge.

It is our task to guide our students, first, in a patient and thorough search for facts and information; and then, in an objective and unhurried interpretation of the facts. Unlike the act of Creation, Light does not come to us mortals at our command. Wisdom must be sought after, earnestly, through months and years, and at the cost of great pains. Often it does not come at all, and we are deluded into thinking that darkness is light.

Let us not forget that when Light flooded the world, it stopped at no national boundaries and selected no favorite races. Americans must not make the mistake of thinking that they are a chosen race, with a monopoly on the intelligence of the world. As a world leader, we need more than ever the humility of seeking the light wherever it may be found, of listening to the voice of wisdom whatever its source. Our schools and colleges must raise up a new generation which understands, or is willing to try to understand, the minds of other peoples — their achievements and their needs, their problems and their ideas. Through the sympathetic study of another language and another culture, our citizens can escape provincialism, and learn to recognize wisdom even when it comes from beyond our boundaries.

Middlebury College stands for this kind of a liberal education. From its hilltop on the Otter, looking to the horizons east and west, it prays “Let there be light in all the earth.”

VICE-PRESIDENT STEPHEN A. FREEMAN.
DEAN BOWKER

To some a man to be conjured with in Math; to others, the Dean of Faculty . . . His job: to operate as the main switchboard where faculty problems are solved, to link the faculty and the President, to flavor Math courses with a new viewpoint and enthusiasm each year. Coming to Midd in 1926 with a M.A. from Harvard, he has noted the growth and rise of the college from horse and buggy graduations and Math in the Chem. building, to a new Munroe Hall and a parking problem.

DEAN KELLY

Understanding and sincere friendship to all Midd students . . . a diligent and capable worker . . . keen mind for solving problems . . . a remarkable memory for names and faces . . . a hostess unsurpassed . . . memorable Thursday afternoon teas . . . delicious food . . . oh, that spiced tea . . . her cozy office a second home . . . undoubtedly the busiest person on campus . . . avid sports fan . . . seen cheering at all the games . . . proud of "her girls" . . . a mother and friend away from home . . . a sympathetic ear . . . coordinator of all women's activities . . . earnest devotion to the college.

The Student Government

MEN'S UNDERGRADUATE ASSOCIATION

Revamped at the end of the last school year, the MUA has proven itself to be a capable group. The greatest factor contributing to its increased efficiency is its smaller size. From a realization that the true center of campus life is the fraternity, dorm representatives were replaced by one delegate from each fraternity and the A- water Club.

In its course of regular duties, the Assembly elected members to such groups as the Concessions Committee, Judiciary Council, and the Athletic Council; it supervised class elections, the college handbook, and the freshmen pictures.

A typical example of its work was the letter sweater question. When the Athletic Council ended the distinction between major and minor sports, the Assembly found it did not have sufficient funds to give sweaters to all letter winners. By the end of the first semester, working with the Athletic Council, the Assembly resolved the problem by awarding sweaters to team captains and winners of three "M" awards.

Its action in handling the screen situation is also to be commended. Late in the school year of 1954-55, an intensive collection of facts was made in all men's dormitories under this group's guidance. The results revealed that the college was overcharging students for screen repair of damage which, in some cases, was due to depreciation. The Assembly had these facts brought to the attention of the students.

Although a great amount of its work, routine but important, goes unpublicized, such a group plays a vital part on campus. With a merger of the MUA and the WUA in the offing, this organization should continue to strengthen its campus position as it has done this year.

WOMEN'S UNDERGRADUATE ASSOCIATION

This year has been a big year for WUA. The new constitution was passed and council government came to the women's campus. This same council was passed by the men, and the women's council is now focusing their attention on the eventual merger with the men's government. The council is made up of the President of WUA and the Chief Justice plus one girl from each dorm. Out of this group are elected the vice-chairman, treasurer and secretary. The old assembly made up of one representative from every ten girls is still in existence, and after the merger this group will be called together on such matters that pertain only to the women's campus. This new executive council came into effect at the beginning of second semester.

The general activities besides the big job of the constitution have been many. They have taken over the dress code from Mortar Board, and this will now come out in May in time for the perspective freshmen to plan her wardrobe. There has been constant work on improving the social code and also on improving student-faculty relations. WUA has a foster child. He is Yo Wan Yung in Korea. They support him financially, since his father was killed in the war, and they also write to him.

The new government has done much to build up the interest of the women's campus in student government affairs. It is hoped that this enthusiasm will continue, and that WUA will have as cooperative workers and as efficient leaders as they had this year.
Early in the Fall of each year, one of the morning chapels is devoted to awarding the highest honor of academic achievement to undergraduates at Middlebury — hard-earned membership into the Phi Beta Kappa Society. The students respectfully stand and watch the members of the Chapter walk to the front of the chapel and take their places.

After one of the members gives a brief history of the PBK Society, and explains the requirements for membership, those seniors who have an average of eighty-nine for six semesters work at Middlebury are called to the front of the chapel, where presentation of the PBK key is made. Upon receiving the key, each new member is shown the special handshake by the President.

At this time, the student officially becomes a member of this select group which includes distinguished scholars of Middlebury back to the class of 1863 when the Beta Chapter of Vermont was installed here. A similar ceremony is repeated at the end of the college year for those graduating seniors with an average rank of 87.5 or better for eight semesters at Midd.

Being tapped into Waubanakee is the highest honor a male undergraduate can achieve at Middlebury. Waubanakee derives its name from an Indian tribe which lived in the Northern part of New England and lower Canada.

Waubanakee was founded in 1911 with the purpose of directing sentiment in all matters of interest to the student body. The members were pledged to bring about "better conditions of the administration of student affairs . . . (the) cultivation of a broader college spirit . . . and . . . better relations between faculty and students.” In the early years of its existence it conducted activities in all phases of campus life, most of which are now under jurisdiction of other organizations. The early symbols of Waubanakee were a tomahawk, for progress, and a turtle, for conservatism.

In 1920, a new constitution was drawn up. Waubanakee assumed a purely honorary role made up of seniors “who have manifested the truest Middlebury spirit during their first three years.”

Waubanakee is a self-perpetuating organization with a seldom filled quota of nine. The members are tapped in the spring of their Junior year on the basis of fulfilling "the high standards of character, scholarship, personality, and extra-curricular activities required by the society. Members tapped last year were Channing B. Murdock, Cyrus P. Anfindsen, and Edward P. MacDowell."
Reviewing Middlebury's educational aims and practices with an eye toward improving the program and bettering student-faculty relations— that is the purpose of the Student Educational Policy Committee. Eight senior men and women, who represent the four divisions of the curriculum, try to present student views on scholastic matters and work closely with the Faculty Educational Policy Committee.

Although their main work is with the curriculum, SEPC annually sets up the student adviser program in conjunction with the Admissions Office, making assignments and meeting with the advisers throughout the year.

In the focal point of interest this year was the Mortar Board Survey on the freshmen curriculum. SEPC felt that student opinion should be consulted in the faculty survey of courses, and interpreted the results of Mortar Board's tabulations. Recommendations were made to the Contemporary Civilization department and to the English department.

Individual appeals from students on problems such as the extension of evening classes to avoid seminar conflicts and the obtaining of credit for choir members have been considered by the committee.

The Student Educational Policy Committee's long distance goal, according to President Robert Santomenna, is working toward an academic honor system at Middlebury and laying the groundwork for an enhanced intellectual climate.

Problems? The Student Life Committee will be happy to help you! As a correlating group between the student body and the administration, SLC hears both sides of campus issues, discusses them, and makes recommendations for their resolution.

Students may offer opinions and suggestions about problems with which they are concerned to the leaders of campus organizations, and the committee discusses them at regular meetings.

For 1955-1956, several major concerns confronted the committee within their job of having general charge of student organizations and functions. Approving constitutions came to the forefront with new class constitutions, as well as many others, being drafted. An annual duty is considering and approving the year's social calendar.

Dormitory food has been an issue in the past, and through the efforts of SLC, this year saw a great improvement. Students greeted the decision, recommended by SLC, on cutting classes after mid-semester recess with great enthusiasm, while the men saw their suggestion for altering the parking rules carried into effect. As a result of SLC recommendation, the whole campus and the parking lots have better lighting. Fraternity rushing will now take place during second semester.

In an attempt to make the Student Life Committee more representative, two members were added this year — the dean of freshmen men and the president of Panhellenic Council.
The Blue Key society is a men's national honor society organized at Middlebury College in 1930. Its quota of five sophomores, fifteen juniors, and five seniors tapped in the late spring of each year need not necessarily be met. The members are chosen on the basis of leadership, sportsmanship, and manhood. The Blue Key's functions include the indoctrination of the freshmen men with the customs and traditions of Middlebury College, the sponsorship of various campus activities, and the promotion of intercollegiate sportsmanship in athletics.

The Blue Key annually awards a $100 scholarship to the undergraduate man who shows need, and who possesses sportsmanship, leadership, and a high academic standing.

A trophy awarded to the freshman man who has done the most to advance the cause of sportsmanship and the spirit of his class has been awarded annually since it was established in 1948.

During U.V.M. Weekend, the Blue Key in connection with Mortar Board at Middlebury and Mortar Board and the Boulder Society at U.V.M. sponsored the Spring Street Stompers. The Blue Key also sponsored the Freshman Week Dance given for the members of the Freshman Class ending their week of indoctrination.

This past year, the Blue Key held a Letterman's Banquet featuring a guest speaker. All the men who had earned a letter in a varsity sport, all the Blue Key members, and all the members of the coaching staff were invited to attend.

The Blue Key Society has over the years done a fine job of preserving the customs and traditions of Middlebury College, and of creating a symbol of leadership, sportsmanship, and manhood toward which all Middlebury men aspire.
Mortar Board

It is spring, and the women's campus seems packed into the Chapel, the junior women all seated in front to await the moment of the tapping for membership into Mortar Board. The night before everyone had crowded into the halls of the dorms as the senior Mortar Board members marched through and tapped their canes for the number of girls who would be asked to join.

These juniors are chosen on three main qualities: leadership, leadership in just one of two activities; scholarship, four points above the college average; and service, service as a good follower and worker as well as a good leader. Each person tapped has had the complete vote of Mortar Board.

This year Mortar Board has been more active than usual. Their main project was a survey of the campus for opinions on the freshmen courses.

This was given because Mortar Board felt that perhaps some of the loss of interest in studies after the first few months was due to the survey courses. The results of this survey were handed over to the Student Educational Policy Committee, to continue from there with recommendations to the various departments. Along a more social line Mortar Board sponsored a tea for the parents of the freshmen the Sunday of their arrival at college. Then at Christmas they had a buffet for the House Directors. Then working in conjunction with Blue Key, they handled such functions as the dance for freshmen at the end of Freshmen Week and the jazz concert UVM weekend in which Mortar Board and Blue Key were aided by the corresponding organizations at UVM.

Mortar Board is the highest honor a Middlebury woman can receive, and the six women in Mortar Board of 1955-56 certainly live up to the high standards of leadership, scholarship, and service.

The Men's and Women's Judicial Councils carry out the functions of the third part of our college government, the judiciary. Primary among their activities is the hearings of cases involving men and women students who, in some way, have violated a college regulation, and the determination in each case just what disciplinary action should be taken. The jurisdiction of the men's council extends to the enforcement of dorm regulations, car violations, and cases involving the falsification of identification. The seven members of the Men's Judicial Council are nominated by the Men's Undergraduate Association, these seven delegating the positions of Chairman, Recorder, and Secretary among themselves. The Women's Judiciary Council is empowered to enforce the social legislation enacted by the Women's Undergraduate Association, which includes such items as late minutes and the drinking code. Due to its closeness to the problems arising under the social code, the Council has been of invaluable aid to the W.U.A. in suggesting changes and additions to it. Heading the Women's Council is the Chief Justice, elected from out of the membership of the senior class by the undergraduate women. The remaining members of the Council are nominated by the W.U.A., one each from the senior, junior, and sophomore classes.

The Judicial Councils

Debaters

Employing the topic, "Resolved: That all non-agriculture workers should be guaranteed an annual wage," the Debaters, under the guidance of Mr. Fred Bowman, have striven to equal their excellent record of last year. At this time, they participated in the National Debate Tournament at West Point, after becoming second in the New York-New England division.

They have climbed the first steps to that goal — tying for second place in the U.V.M. Tournament, which is the largest in the East, and placing second in the Tufts Tournament, which encompasses all of New England. They also plan to debate in the St. Lawrence Tournament.

The Debaters have an enjoyable time too — in their new car, given to the club this year by Edwin W. Lawrence, they made a debating trip-vacation touring the southern states, and enjoying the well-deserved Florida sunshine during spring vacation.
Science Club

The aim of the Middlebury College Science Club is to better acquaint students with the various fields of science and to stimulate individual research. The meeting programs include speeches of faculty members on popular topics, scientific movies, or explanations of masters’ projects by graduate students. Professor Wissler gave a talk on atomic energy, and Professor Ewell spoke about sensory perception. The geology majors demonstrated the mechanisms of a geyser with apparatus and colored chalk diagrams. The 1955-1956 Science Club officers are: Sheldon Dean, President; John de Gunzburg, Vice President; Sue Lehman, Secretary; and Frances Hall, Publicity Chairman. The Science Club was formerly known as the Alchemists, but since only chemistry majors were eligible for membership in the Alchemists, the name of the club was changed in order to include undergraduates from all science departments.

International Relations Club

The International Relations Club is not a new thing on the Middlebury College campus. Such an organization existed several years ago, but the past several years have not seen an active group. This year through the interest of a group of students a successful attempt to re-establish an organization of this type was made. The meetings have taken the form of discussions of topics of current interest by faculty members and students. Fortunately there has been the opportunity to take advantage of first hand reports on world affairs. Herr Neuse, upon his return from a semester’s stay in Germany, reported upon that nation’s situation in regard to reunification. In a similar way, Mlle. Grandjean commented upon her native country’s position in the world today. Mr. Beauchesne, of the Political Science Department, advisor to the group, and various students have contributed to the discussions.

At present, a Constitution Committee is in the process of formulation of a more specific organization. The committee consists of Philip Braun, Lucy James, George Joseph, Elizabeth Mathewson, Phillippe Travernier, Martha Belknap, Ronald Friedland, Narda Carlson, Richard Kim, and Konrad Schultz.
A deadline to meet — Wednesday noon — when the weekly eight-page issue of the Middlebury Campus goes to press. This is the day which haunts Editor-in-Chief Walt Mears, who coordinates the activities and affairs of the busiest office on Campus, located in the Student Union, the center of campus life. It all starts on Thursday when the staff of able reporters receives its assignments for the coming week. Sunday night sees a scene of hectic editing and checking, and last-minute writing to make the week’s issue even better than the last one. By Wednesday all is ready — last minute news has been squeezed in, rings and pins have been checked and rechecked, dorms have been called for information, and all is ready for the presses.

This final product is the main organ of information for the Middlebury student body, to which every one looks forward each Thursday evening for news of the past week on campus and news of the coming weekend. The Editor is aided by a staff composed of a large number of reporters and most important, a staff of managers and assistant editors who carry on the basic work of the paper. Margaret Dickie acts in the capacity of Managing Editor. Bob Peatfield takes care of the financial end of things as Business Manager, aided by Judy Phinney his assistant. Advertising, the town relations part of the paper, is ably carried out by Wendy Buehr, and Ollie Morton keeps the sports office going with up to the minute news on games and scores.

These people and others take care of keeping the Student Body posted on activities and goings on around Midd; these people are the members of the staff of the Campus.

The 1956
KALEIDOSCOPE

The 1956 Kaleidoscope is the product of many months of toil on the part of both staff and editors. This year's Kaleid has been co-ordinated by the Editor, Gail Moore, from the first thought of its theme to its publishing.

The art staff had Patricia Langley as its Editor. She and her staff were responsible for placing sketches throughout the yearbook after having developed them from the theme. Every once in awhile, an unanticipated space would have to be filled. The art staff was always kept busy.

The business staff was headed by Manager Norman Crowder. The business staff's chief function was the securing of advertisers for the advertising section, the financial mainstay of the yearbook. This entailed making frequent trips to places such as Burlington and Rutland. The layout of the advertising section was also handled by this staff.

The literary staff Editor was David Tuttle. The literary staff did the writing of all the articles which appear in the yearbook with the exception of those of the fraternities, sororities, and some of the members of the faculty. The articles had to be carefully designed for the space they were to fill, and the style of the writing had to suit the subject.

The management staff carried out its functions with Barbara Ransom as its Editor. This staff had the task of typing copy for the literary staff, and seeing that the engraver's and publisher's deadlines were met by all the contributing staffs.

The photography staff, Elizabeth Mooney Editor, was responsible for the picture layout of the entire yearbook as well as the scheduling of pictures and retakes, and the selection and arrangement of informal shots.

The product of these five staffs faced with these and many more tasks is the 1956 Kaleidoscope.
Dance Club

The Dance Club has gained even a higher place in the activities of Middlebury College this year, under the leadership of Patty Tibone. Through their diligence and talent, the members have created an interest for dance in the student body, and are in demand for entertainment at many dances and parties during the year.

A faithful and truly interested group of girls meet each week to improve their dance techniques and practice new routines designed by the members. The group has created a number of routines and is planning a large production for the Spring, while they gave a performance of both original dances and techniques for the freshmen in October.

Although there are only three girls in the specialized "Dance Group" at present, tryouts will be held in the Spring for new members.

Mrs. Dorothea B. Marshall, who is the club's advisor, is also the modern dance instructor at the college. She and the Dance Group sponsored a successful program by Martha Meyer in February, and have worked to keep in touch with other colleges in this area as to the new developments and techniques of modern dance.

Community Chest Drive '56

donations for two-thirds of the total fund was necessary; therefore, personal envelopes were passed through the student body.

Another source of revenue was the Community Chest Fair headed by Robert Morris '56 and Lucy James '57. Fraternities, sororities, and faculty set up concessions, which provided an evening's fun highlighted by the arm-wrestling concession, and a Healy donated painting netting $85 for the cause.

A new idea of an ugly man contest added college spirit. Mike Hanafee's ability to triumph as the ugliest of the ugly netted him the title and a tidy sum for the drive.

Added funds from fraternity and faculty donations aided in a collective effort of $2,600 for this year.

At Middlebury, each year a concerted student effort is activated to raise money for the community chest. This year's drive, under the direction of Gerry Cobb '56 and Lucy Boyd '56, was enthusiastically begun with the formation of necessary committees and the establishment of a goal of $3,000. Dependence on individual
Frontiers

A hybrid publication of bohemian existence in search of an audience; the collective inspiration of a handful of voices eager to be heard in print; a gnashing of editorial teeth in small tired hours of morning . . . these things, and many others, fit for remembrance. These things to know if you are curious about your magazine, Frontiers. And if you are not in too much of a hurry, have time to listen awhile . . . to tell you how it happens.

Editor Mark Hopkins calling for a staff meeting in the college newspaper because Frontiers has no room of its own, and people like Bills Fay and McMurray, Jack Ebbels and Sabra Harwood, Beth Davis and Rosamund Mueller sitting around and talking with Pete Brigham, Vickie Grove, Pan Libman, Penny Martin and Gerry Raymond about stuff for publication, and sometimes Walt Mear looking in to see if his office was being kept clean, and sometimes the talking getting pretty heated about which stuff should be kept and which should go. And Hopkins keeping cool, being practical, thinking always of the magazine first.

Meanwhile, Bob Gilmore hustling advertising in the village, convincing the merchants Frontiers will be clean from now on. Getting their business.

Manuscripts coming slow at first. Hopkins looking nervous. Then, just before the deadline, enough and more. Staff meetings, rejection slips, phone calls to Queen City Printers in Burlington, the setting up of the magazine as it would appear in print. A revision of this. Then another. At last, the proofs down from Burlington and looking pretty good. Then cartons of Frontiers hugged up to the office for labeling and stamping (thanks, Walt) to mail to the kids off campus. Dean Thurber called and getting his permission for vehicular delivery to the Battells and armed with a note just in case of Chandler.

And in the office after it was all over my asking Mark what next and his answering “Bed” wearily out the door.
Women's Forum

Twenty years old and still growing, Women's Forum continued its tradition of service this year under the leadership of Nancy Warner.

Forum's focus has undergone a major change since its founding as an international relations study group in 1936. Its field of interest is no longer the world scene, but the town of Middlebury, Vermont, U. S. A.

Promoting town-gown good will through service is the aim of the 560 college students who work on Forum's 26 committees. With the Community House as a hub of activity, the organization extends its services to all of Middlebury and its environs through the homes, schools and welfare institutions.

To celebrate its twentieth year, Forum entertained well-wishers from Village and Hill at a May tea in the Community House. The calendar for that month also starred the All-Forum Picnic, a piano recital by Forum-taught proteges, and the colorful May Day pageant staged by youngsters in the various classes. Another springtime activity was the All-Forum project in which members aided public health officials in polio vaccination clinics.

Ever ready to meet the needs of an active and expanding community, Forum widened its scope of service this year by offering two new classes, baton-twirling and acrobatics, to school-age youngsters.

The problem of integrating so large and diversified an organization was solved this year by another innovation, the publication of "Forum Footnotes," a quarterly newsletter hitting the high spots of Forum committee doings.

The 1956 Date Book campaign under the super-salesmanship of Pam Clark was the most successful ever, with all 750 calendars sold to students, faculty, administration and alumni.

Forum investments for 1955-56 included the annual scholarship to a Middlebury woman and a contribution to the hot-lunch program in local schools.

Behind all the high spots on the Forum schedule are countless hours of planning and book work, hikes with the Girl Scouts, and sewing and pressing for Thrift Shop sales – all done with an enthusiasm that makes Forum one of the most active groups on campus.
Again this year, the Players no sooner finished one production than they began another.

To open the season this year, the Players presented "A Midsummer Night's Dream." This comedy about love by William Shakespeare proved to be one of the most difficult tasks ever undertaken by the Players. Peter Honegger, '58, as Oberon, Patricia Hunter, '56, as Hermia, Joanna Taft, '58, as Helena, George Tuttle, '56, as Bottom, and Michael Werman, '58, as Wall, together with the directors and the staging crews did a splendid job of presenting a very difficult-to-produce play.

The play presented during Carnival this year was Moss Hart's "Light Up the Sky," a play which deals with the chaos of theater life. The play takes place in the hotel suite of Irene Livingston, Victoria Grove, '56, before and after the first night of a new play in Boston. Irene Livingston is the star of the new play written by Peter Sloane, Robert MacGowan, '58.

To close the season, the Players presented "Six Characters in Search of an Author."

During the year, twelve one-act plays, one of which was student written, were presented.

Again as last year, the Players held an open house for the members of the Freshman Class during the Freshman Week orientation program.

The purpose of the Players is twofold. First, it provides entertainment, and second, it provides an artistic outlet.

The great hope of the Players ever since the fire in 1953 which destroyed the college playhouse, and a hope which is coming even closer to materialization, is not only evidenced by the inadequate facilities which the Players must now use but by the percentage of the student body in attendance at the aforementioned plays. This percentage runs much higher at Middleburg than at colleges with much better drama facilities.

The ultimate goal of the Players is to have their productions subsidized as is the Concert-Lecture Series, thereby enabling admission-free performances.
As the governing board of Players, Wig and Pen provides the leadership and technical knowledge necessary for good college drama. This year the organization has been under the direction of President George Tuttle, assisted by Lee Goodrich as Vice-President and Margaret Zornow as Secretary-Treasurer.

Wig and Pen sponsors three major plays each year, plus a series of one-act plays given in conjunction with the drama production class. At the meetings, when the group is not working on the current production, they entertain each other with creative programs or enjoy some sort of social function.

This spring Wig and Pen revised its constitution in order to obtain a more flexible membership policy. Membership for 1955-56 has increased to thirty-five actives. With its new point system, Wig and Pen hopes to promote more versatility among its members and to encourage a greater interest in all phases of production.
Skyline

For the few who make it, Skyline is a great experience. Acting as the governing board of the Mountain Club, Skyline is responsible for organizing and leading the Freshman Outing, the brisk fall trips, Woodsman's Weekend, Alpinstock dance, ski and snowshoe hikes, Carnival, and the many fine spring hikes — all for everyone to enjoy. Enveloped by some of Vermont's most scenic landscape, it is our pleasure to show others some of the natural wonder which is so close yet so far away for most of the student body. After a year and a half try-out period, six women and six men in each sophomore class are chosen on their leadership ability, knowledge of Skyline and Mountain Club activities, first-aid, and interest in the club to become members. Hard work is ahead as a Skyliner, but the satisfaction of seeing others enjoy what you have organized is the reward we seek.
You just came back from Mansfield? . . . yup . . . little wet wasn’t it? . . . yup . . . cold? . . . yup . . . how’s your disposition? . . . fine, always rains when I go on a hike! Let’s go for a lion hunt . . . stomp, stomp, etc . . . coming pretty close . . . it’s got hair, eyes . . . couldn’t be another freshman . . . must be a Blue Key man! That’s how it went this year . . . rainy hikes . . . a great freshman outing, rained then, too . . . cleared up just long enough to play rabbit.

Woodman’s weekend . . . axes, saws, a few squares in the barn . . . hob-nail boots and all. Frost on the ground made it a little chilly sleeping . . . sure was beautiful when the sun came up. Then winter . . . ski hikes with Mr. Handy . . . small trips to Voter-White . . . Sugar Slalom . . . and Mountain Club’s big baby — Carnival. When that comes along, you can feel it in your bones and everyone gets right in there for chores and fun . . . pleadings with the snow god for some nice powder and please not during Carnival . . . It’s too cold and hard for checkers. Then shortly after comes bill time . . . bills . . . bills.

There’s always Skyline, the governing board, for those real interested freshmen and sophomores. The try-outs are really kept busy, working on Carnival . . . planing their own hikes . . . making sandwiches . . . and being generally in the middle of things.

A busy function for all is keeping up our portion of the Long Trail, keeping the trail clean and repairing the cabins, especially Mountain Club’s own cabin — Skyline Lodge. New work done this year . . . a trail through Ripton Gorge in the eventful hopes of building a cabin off the Long Trail for Mountain Club’s own use.

So grab your slouch hat . . . wear boots, you can count on mud . . . good old jeans that can stand rock sliding . . . and hop in the bus. Or just grab some steak, rat cheese, French bread, and wine and let’s us few sneak off for a quiet little party, maybe a little singing to the uke . . . smelling of wood smoke, but always in a good humor. So, no matter what your interest — skiing, hiking, building . . . genius at planning . . . connoisseur of outdoor cooking . . . do join us in one round of Poor Lil.
Although the name of the college radio station isn’t new to the Midd campus, so many new changes have come about in this quarter that probably it’s name and address are the only things recent grads would recognize if they were to return to college and visit the studios located in the rear of the Student Union Building.

Operating in co-operation with the Intercollegiate Broadcasting System, a nationwide association of college radio stations, WRMC can be heard early every morning and each evening at the 750 spot on the dial, when they present a wide selection of news broadcasts, sportscasts, disk jockey shows, classical music and other novelties that appear consistently.

Among the bigger changes that have occurred, the newly installed control room is a shining feature. It is here, in this control room between the two large studios, and separated from them by double-pane, reflection-proof windows, where all the technical operations of broadcasting are performed by the staff of engineers. Their role has been enhanced by a professional-looking control panel, dual transcription turntables, and synchronized clocks to keep everything running on schedule. Under cover in the station’s news room is the new transmitter built especially for the station by Grant Warner. Also in the newsroom, is the busy teletype machine which connects WRMC directly with United Press, and the record library which numbers its disks in the thousands.

During the past year this outfit has welcomed those new personnel who passed periodic auditions to the announcing staff. Sports broadcasts were brilliantly performed by Phil Derick, enabling the station to bring athletic events home to those who couldn’t get away to the games. With ten local sponsors, and such national sponsors as Lucky Strike cigarettes, additional support for the station has come from RCA, Capitol, MGM and other recording companies that have supplied records at nominal cost.

Increased reception has brought the station’s programs, from Early Birds to Sleepy Time, to more students than ever before, while advance publicity waves the station flag to attract even more.

For the best in music, news, and sports...
Yacht Club

Lake Dunmore is the scene of more than the familiar parties — it’s the outpost and racing grounds of the Middlebury Yacht Club.

Here the members can sail in the moonlight, roast hot dogs, and have friendly fun while they participate in the joy of their lives — sailing!

The club members have the use of Mrs. Britain’s cabin and dock and have four fiber glass Tech. dingies. Besides just sailing for the fun of it, and getting together at Dunmore for the famous Yacht Club parties, there is a team of sailors who compete in most of the Eastern intercollegiate races — and they have an excellent record.

The competition is especially heavy in the spring — the club holds a triangular meet at Dunmore, and a quadrangular regatta in March. They participate in the Sharpe Cup Regatta at Brown University, and compete for the Boston Dinghy Cup at the Coast Guard Academy. April finds the sailors racing in a hexagonal regatta at Dartmouth. The freshmen sailors also compete for Midd. at M.I.T.

Of course, the Commodore’s Ball is one of the social highlights of the year during Homecoming Weekend, and the main social event of the club.

Flying Panthers

The Flying Panthers, the flying club of Middlebury College is presently engaging in a reorganization drive to bring new members into the club. Although the club has been on campus for a few years the interest in the club has never been too great. This year with old members numbering four and with one 1946 Aronca airplane that has been patched up following a slight accident last year, the club, now composed of ten members, is looking forward to clearer skies.

The club is fortunate in having a qualified flying instructor who spends most of his time at the airport. Besides this the rates for flying are low compared with most other areas and this means that the opportunity to learn how to fly is open to a greater number of people.

Besides actual flying, the club sponsors meetings where movies provide both an entertainment as well as an instructive value. The topics of these movies include actual flying procedure, airplane safety, and weather observations. Also in line for future meetings are guest lecturers who will give talks on varying phases of airplane flying.

In the future there is the hope that interscholastic flying meets can be arranged with other schools so that the members can gain increased knowledge in various flying conditions.

A picnic on Chipman Hill with songs and games started off the year for le Cercle français. During the year, le Chateau was the scene of many meetings at which interested students could speak French and learn the ways of the country. October brought the Guignol, the traditional French children's theatre, and games for group participation. In November, a discussion of France and the year spent there was given by two of the seniors as the highlight of the program. The annual Christmas play was put on in December, "The Little Prince" being this year's production. After the first of the year, there were slides and films by Dr. Freeman of his recent trip. Le Bal du Cercle was the highlight of the March meeting with le Sahara as the theme. The faculty put on its annual play in April and the year finished with the Junior Take-Off's in May.

French Club

German Club

Herr Neuse and a number of enthusiastic German students gain fun as well as valuable experience while participating in Midd's German Club. Through singing, games, and even bridge, they use the German they have learned in the classroom, and come to understand the people, the customs and the language better.

Since Herr Neuse has just returned from Germany, the club enjoyed seeing the slides of his trip. They also have German food, plays, and talks from faculty members or students who have actually been able to see Germany for themselves. They live, eat, and speak in the German custom, and have lots of fun doing it.
Meeting monthly throughout the year, the Russian Club is designed to acquaint the students of the language with the customs and traditions of the country which would otherwise be omitted in classes. This aim leaves room for a lot of activities, and the club has been working all year to achieve this goal. The meetings of the club this year featured skits, singing of folk songs, and dancing of peasant dances, typical of the country. At each meeting a different type of food was served, thus introducing members to Russian cooking, and the famous Russian tea was drunk from the traditional samovar. Films and lectures were presented from time to time to introduce the country and her people to the club members. In May the Russian Club finished up a successful year with its annual closing meeting.

Russian Club

Babbidge, Smith, Herring

Spanish Club

With its major aim being to give students an opportunity to converse in Spanish, and to get to know the customs of Spain, the Spanish Club started the year well with a native dinner at the home of the Sam Guarinaccias in September. Subsequently monthly meetings brought discussions and talks by students who had spent a year in Spain. The Christmas program was a highlight with a production of “El Auto de los Tres Reyes Magos,” the traditional nativity play, and a party featuring a piñata. March saw the presentation of a one-act play, “La Fabillia del Secreto Bien Guardado,” put on by the club for the whole Spanish Department. Other meetings held included Spanish songs and guitar music, and occasional games for group activity. The year was successfully rounded-out with the annual banquet at the Dog Team.

Christian Association

Hillel

With the aim of developing Judaism's cultural and religious interest among Jewish students in American colleges and universities, the National Hillel established a chapter at Middlebury. In this, its second year of existence, the chapter is an undoubted success, filling a need long unheeded on campus. With membership doubled from last year, the Hillel chapter here not only serves students but also has attracted enough local interest so that its meetings are held at Jewish homes in the community.

Bimonthly meetings provide short services, sermons, and discussions led by students and guests to stimulate its members. Through Hillel, Jewish students were able to celebrate holidays such as Chanukah, the Festival of Lights, with a banquet at Bristol Inn, and High Holy Day at the U.V.M. Hillel services. Despite the necessity of being preoccupied with its own youthful struggles to survive and adjust to campus conditions, it has given a hand in the support of the religious conference and has established a Hebrew class open to all students.

Newman Club
THE BAND

Directed by Mr. Gustav Foret and managed by William Davis, '56, the band began the year by playing at all the home, and most of the away football games. The band's membership during the football season was the highest that it stood throughout the year, about forty-five.

During the football season, the band introduced "The Middlebury College March," an original composition by director Foret and officially accepted as the Middlebury College song.

Following the football season, the band began its concert season. One of its first engagements was at the Weeks School in Vergennes where it, accompanied by the Women's Glee Club, for the first time played music by modern composers. The program was very well received.

As the year progressed, a wind ensemble was formed from the band. This ensemble, numbering about twenty, brought this year's activities of the band to a close in the spring by playing at the Brandon State School and at the Weeks School.
Music at Middlebury

CHAMBER MUSIC GROUP

This year the chamber music group is a small string orchestra under the direction of Mr. Carter. They get together once a week, and mostly it is for their own enjoyment and relaxation. They have been working in conjunction with the small choir, hoping to be able to put on a program in Chapel of Bach. The group is mostly freshmen and a few people from Middlebury.

A few fraternity jobs throughout the year . . . Midnight . . . and the Musicale . . . gave these people their chance. Also went out to Shard Villa with Women's Forum to give the women some good entertainment. All and all a full year of singing.

THE FRESHMAN MEN'S GLEE CLUB
THE BLACK PANTHERS

Active for many years on the Middlebury College scene is the versatile organization known as the Black Panthers.

Al Hayes, the Black Panther's leader, usually works with a quintet, although the size of his group may range anywhere from a trio to a regular stock band. When playing as a band, the Black Panthers are usually at their full strength of sixteen.

The Black Panthers, who own quite an extensive music library, play Dixieland and modern jazz almost entirely. Although they are heavy on reeds and horns, the Black Panthers are able to produce very nearly any desired effect.

Better known for their playing at fraternity parties, the Black Panthers also entertain at college functions at Middlebury as well as at local high schools and at other colleges such as Dartmouth, R.P.I. and St. Lawrence.

CHOIR

Sunday vespers... somebody took my robe!... conflict of high heels and steep stairs... those "unmarchable" recessinals... but someone has to sit in those front seats... up the steps with left foot first... out of step again... The Lord Bless You and Keep You led by Mimi... unexpected solos... the addition of Pam's rich voice... rehearsals... tireless and enthusiastic Nancy always there with scores, fresh starched collars and a pencil for corrections... the bass section and their occasional birdlike whistling... our move to join the congregation on Tuesday and Thursday mornings... The Mozart Requiem... high point of the year... the fun of having faculty and friends join their voices to ours... Our Dog Team buffet... a combination of fun, friends, and food... most of all Mr. Berger... his patience, good humor, fine music and direction.

DISMULTATED EIGHT

Middlebury's men of song... serenades by moonlight... from Mood Indigo to Tear it Down... Potter leading the Eight... successful engagements at Williams, Cornell, Green Mountain Junior College and Hartness House... performed at "No Snow" Variety Show during carnival when alum "Eighters" stepped back into their old spots and sang out with the group... freshman faces showed approval at their first introduction to the Dissipated Eight at Midd-Nite... Stu U. rehearsals with Potter keeping things in line will long be remembered... New faces and voices year replacing the familiar old ones... provide laughs as well as mighty fine music... hard work and long practice pay off in superb blending, technique and tone... well known throughout Eastern colleges... light music, light hearted... open auditions held for new members... We're proud to claim them as a part of Midd.

Alumni arrived in cars by the score;
They kept us all busy. Committees galore
Were carrying on for the yearly blast
To recapture, somewhat, each visitor's past.
Chairmen were hurrying here and there
To be sure that each member was doing his share
In preparing Midd for the joyful day
When work should concede to boisterous play.
The visitors registered and paid their tuition
Each planning to further the great tradition
Of taking all comers and topping the scores.
In cases like this, Pep Rallies are bores!
Saturday's dawn was gloomy and drear,
But who can stay dismal with bottles of cheer?
At noon a banquet regaled one and all
Not only with food, but with stories, quite tall.
And then the big game! We were put to rout,
The Williams team beat us, but there is no doubt
Our team was hampered by lack of luck
As on they struggled through knee-deep muck.
But unimpressed by deterioration,
We went on to further the celebration;
There were cocktail parties and open houses
Honoring Alums and their lovely spouses.
We drink to the Commodore, who gave us the ball,
The decorations, the food, the music and all.
The Catamounts, as usual, were really great,
And so were the Dissipated Eight.
In dissipated, langorous style, they told
Of moonlight and love, all unchanged, as of old.
As the hour of two approached we knew
That we'd have to rush to imbibe more brew.
The coeds left us with a margin of minutes,
So goodnights were said within strictest limits.
We felt we could dance and sing until light
And we really hated to say 'goodnight.'
Sunday dawned a lovely day
And as to Chapel we found our way
Each in his heart and mind depicts
Another Homecoming in the year '56.
Religion Conference: December 1, 2, 3

This year the 1955 Religion Conference gave Midd-ites their third annual bout with the different aspects of religion. The conference, which was held in Mead Chapel Dec. 1-3, had as its topic, “Religious Symbolism in an Age of Criticism.”

The keynote speech was given by Rabbi Richard Rubenstein from Temple Israel in Matic, Massachusetts, who is the Hillel counselor for Wellesley College. The Rabbi stressed the point that symbolism today is as strong as it ever was four hundred years ago, in spite of historical criticism. He said that man, while searching for himself, turns to religion for the completion and integration that he needs. Man finds in religion a mutual sense of agreement with others who have been faced with his same problems. Prayer, Rabbi Rubenstein defined, as a communion of sharing in which the individual becomes aware of the depth of reality. The religious symbol is meaningful for us today because it has given us a new insight into the complexity of man.

Dr. Edmund La B. Cherbonnier, who upheld the Protestant position, is a professor at Trinity College and a deacon at St. John the Divine in New York City. Dr. Cherbonnier discussed the basic truth and efficacy of the historical Hebrew-Christian symbol. He described the use of the symbol in mysticism as the special alley through which an individual might reach God. Because the symbol is ambiguous in that it both reflects and distorts truth, the only way to avoid paradox is to keep symbols silent. The symbol has a dual function; it can recreate the thing that it represents, and it can help bring about the thing that it symbolizes.

The representative of the Catholic faith was Dr. Philip J. Scharper, associate editor of the Catholic periodical, "The Commonweal." Dr. Scharper talked about "analogy," an aspect of being in which the one is reconciled with the many. Since analogy is a natural tendency of mankind, symbolism, which is an analogy when combined with language, is also common to man. He pointed out how the Church reconciles the many and the one by being the community in which man can lose himself without losing his individuality.

The speeches were followed by informal discussion periods in the North lounge of Stu U., where the students were given a chance to question the speakers. For the three mornings that they were here, the speakers provided a break from regular classroom routine by lecturing in various courses.

The conference co-chairman, Bill McMurray, '57, and Debbie Sheppard, '56, did an able job in organizing the 1955 conference. They were aided by Gwynne Kimbell, '56, conference secretary, a large student committee, and Chaplain Scott, all of whom deserve recognition for their hard work in making this conference successful. The sessions were well attended by the student body, and provoked a great deal of interest and thought in the aspects of religion which were presented.
It was a snow covered campus in Vermont... warm weather, snow sculptures melting, water trickling into the gutter. I was working out of the date detail from the Battells... it was a winter carnival case. This is Middlebury, I study here.

I checked out at 12:26... My partner dropped me off at the Field House. I had to look into a basketball game. Middlebury looked good. They won. Maybe there's something in this carnival racket after all.

At 6:17 I got a hot lead on some food at a fraternity house. That evening we ran a stake out on an ice show... it was cold. I flashed my combo ticket and went in. Judith Johnson looked professional but the faculty act took the play from the clowns. The brains behind the outfit was Joan Rehe. At 8:32 Mervin McCutcheon and Margaret Zornow pulled off their act in "Light Up the Sky"... I almost cried. At that I called it an evening.
Friday morning I sent out a campus-wide alarm on some skiers. I wanted to find out what they were up to. The report said ski conditions fair . . . Dartmouth and Middlebury rated top but Igaya might make the difference. He did. At 2:38 I parked my squad car in the pit and investigated the hockey game. It was a riot. They won. Then I stopped in at a fraternity cocktail party which was mellow . . . got high. At 7:43 my partner phoned in with the downhill and slalom results. The score was close, Dartmouth leading.

I took an evening off and went to an informal buffet dinner and a formal dance. However I found myself back in the middle of the case since this was still part of the carnival. The theme of the dance was "Olympic Eve," and from the students' mood I concluded that this man Lawrence must have had something. The backdrop of a winter scene gave perspective to the dance floor, and the gymnasium counterfeited a star-covered ballroom. At 10:54 I got a final clearing on the royal titles of Linda Donk and Ronald O'Keefe. They were crowned at 11:06. At 1:00 the dance was over, and I cruised around in my squad car checking 2:00 A. M. light blinkings.
Saturday morning I slept late. The case had me snowed. Murky skies and falling snow washed out a jump investigation, so we settled into the daily routine. Fraternity open houses, movies, and the variety show turned out to be blind leads. Then we got our big tip... we ran Gardiner Barnum through R and I. Klondike Rush was the answer. I talked to the chief... he liked the set-up. 9:27... we were at the dance. As the Vermonters played, we waited for further developments. Then the case broke. South Battell and the Slugs won the snow sculpture. UVM copped the women's ski events. But the E.I.S.A. was still at large. So I put in a call for my partner, and we headed out for the jazz concerts. The Spring Street Stompers and the Dukes of Dixie got up a large racket which threw the dazed crowds into oblivion.
Sunday morning the campus was white and dead. An empty beer can rattled down College Street. The students were gone. 10:27 . . . we pulled into the Snow Bowl and waited for the showdown battle of the E.I.S.A. title. The day was perfect and the jump loomed before us in readiness. As I searched the crowd for possible cues, I noticed Dr. Chung-Ying Chih looking around. Ah ha! Chinese checker. The jumping started, Cummings for Middlebury jumped 191 feet, but Riisnaes made it 93 — a record. This clinched the case. . .

That afternoon I cleared through the final details at the milk punch parties. Linda Donk and Gardner Barnum rounded out the testimony — February 18, 1956 . . . Verdict . . .
“We the student body of Middlebury College . . . find this carnival . . . great!”
Concert - Lecture Series

Through the efforts of Jean Berger, assistant professor of music, and a committee composed of both faculty and students, Middlebury has again been provided with a series of outstanding performances in the concert-lecture field. For the mere presentation of an ID card, Middlebury students are introduced to a panorama of literary, musical, dramatic, and artistic talent which would otherwise be unavailable to students in the small liberal arts college.

The first of the six programs for the 1955-56 season was presented on Oct. 16 by the Canadian Players of Stratford, Ontario. Through their innovations of simple lighting and sound equipment, modern actors in modern dress, the players brought Bernard Shaw’s “Saint Joan” to new heights. It was received enthusiastically by the audience who were both startled and delighted by their refreshing presentation.

This successful program was followed by a piano concert on Dec. 4 offered by Gyorgy Sandor. He, too, was enthusiastically received by the Middlebury audience. Sandor’s proficiency united with his youthful and warm personality to give a memorable performance on the keyboard.

Jan. 15, found Olga Coelho, renowned Brazilian soprano, at Middlebury. Miss Coelho delighted the audience with her foreign accent, scintillating voice and personal charm. As a student of the famed guitarist Segovia, Miss Coelho was an object of special attention on campus — and she did not let her audience down.

The fourth feature in a series was presented by the Italian ensemble, I Musici, who gave a program of chamber music on Feb. 5. March 11, found Jacob Lawerence, who has recently tied for the United Nations Mural Award, at Middlebury. He gave a demonstration lecture, dealing primarily with his paintings of the western hemisphere.

The last performance of the season took place on April 22, with the annual concert of the Vermont State Symphony Orchestra, which is conducted by Middlebury’s Mr. Alan Carter. This performance brought the concert-lecture series to a successful close.
Let's stop a minute and think back to the Spring of 1955. These months, too, were highlighted by weekends set aside for social and cultural pursuits.

Cultural Conference and “Man's Changing Image of Himself” occupied a balmy weekend in March. To the tune of fast-moving knitting needles, man was tossed from psychologist to advertising executive and along the panel table in an attempt to determine the picture man has of himself. The topic was, perhaps, too general to permit any conclusion to be made, but the discussion it prompted went on long after the Sunday morning summary.

And on another balmy weekend, this one in May, the entire campus joined the Juniors in going “Out of this World.” A Planetary Picnic with heavenly fried chicken started the weekend on a gay note and on it sped up the Stairway to the Stars where Jane Hoge was crowned queen of the weekend to the music of Harry Marchard. The “Red Chariot” carried us to another memorable evening’s entertainment.

Commencement 1955 — a final jubilee, the climax of four years of work and fun. The traditions of Middlebury, the Cane Ceremony, Baccalaureate, were mingled with the light-hearted pleasures of Class Day skits and the Senior Boat Dance. And then, finally, Commencement itself, a time to think of both Middlebury College and the Class of 1955 with pride.
FRATERNITIES — FRIENDSHIPS GAINED THROUGH WORKING AND ENJOYING LIFE AS A GROUP, IN HELPING OTHERS THROUGH LOCAL AND NATIONAL PHILANTHROPIES, IN THE HECTIC PERIOD OF RUSHING OR THE RELAXED ATMOSPHERE OF A SATURDAY NIGHT GET-TOGETHER; TIES WHICH LAST NOT ONLY FOUR YEARS, BUT A LIFETIME.
The Interfraternity Council is an organization consisting of two representatives from each of the fraternities. It is designed to promote co-operation and good will among the fraternities and between the fraternities and the town and the administration. In its work among the fraternities, such duties as supervising all rushing activity and regulating intramural athletics stand high on the list.

This past year has seen many added responsibilities taken on by the I.F.C. A Social Council consisting of the social chairman of the ten houses was formed. This was prompted by the increased need of a concentrated study of social activities. I.F.C. Guides were used for the first time last year. Working in co-operation with the Office of Admissions, these people show prospective Freshmen the campus. A Pledge Trainers Council for house Pledge Trainers was established to study the methods of pledging. Participation with the Panhellenic Council as seen in the presentation of the Freshman Dance, Greek Night, and joint sponsorship by the sororities and fraternities of the Christmas parties for underprivileged children were two more responsibilities of the I.F.C. new to the College scene.

The Interfraternity Council made a new departure last year from first to second semester rushing. The new rushing schedule which will first be used in the second semester of the 1956-57 school year was passed by an 8-2 vote.

As can be seen, the Interfraternity Council’s absence last year as in previous years would have been sorely felt, for it is the heart of the Middlebury College Fraternity system.
Alpha Sigma Psi has settled down for its second year in the Healy manse... House Manager Paquette really started the ball rolling, and the house was brightened up with paint and wallpaper... the cellar was shaped up considerably... Mrs. A in her ninth year as Housemother.

Eighteen pledges, of whom great things are expected eventually... Pledge weekend in December was a miniature Carnival in itself... Harry the Fez from Williams played at the Inn for the dance, then jammed at the house till 3:30, when he was carried out... the barn's still there, still just a barn... the Slugs loaned the ATO's the scholarship trophy pro tem... good teams this year... the volleyball championship... the town kids loved the Christmas party... things are in great shape on South Street.

Alpha Tau Omega

Alpha Tau Omega enjoyed another good year taking the Scholarship Trophy and capturing the Homecoming decorations award with a Disney type panther leading the Williams purple cow to the slaughter. Their leadership was well-represented in such organizations as the IFC, MUA, WRMC, debating, Skyline, Band, and various other phases of campus life. We participated in the Bowdoin Plan with Dick Kim as their guest first semester and Conrad Schultz the second. Along with Sigma Kappa, they brought Santa Claus to the children at Caverly Preventorium in Pittsfield, Vermont, and also held their Help Week project at Caverly. They socially enjoyed a formal dinner at the Inn on the night of Carnival Ball, and a Spring Formal at the Dog Team. In essence, a hard-working, fun-loving, fraternity-minded crew.

Chi Psi

Continued close brotherhood and high spirit remained paramount in a well-integrated group of responsible men at Mu. Campus activities, varsities, intramurals, helpweek projects, carol sings — showed high “B” participation. Parking problem alleviated by college facilities, orderly disorder at mealtimes prevailed, and the social hooper rating blew its top on U.V.M., Beachcomber’s Brawl, Carnival, and Junior Week-end. Through the close coordination of the Schaefer-Gilmore Sub-investigating Committee, T.V. at long last came to the Lodge. Another year, another group, and more fun fostered in a congenial atmosphere. Thus the administration of justice continued to be ably dealt out to the Chipseys by Schwerdtle, Powell, Thomas and Brigham, with Mr. Kay, finding a way to their hearts through their stomachs.
Delta Kappa Epsilon

Socially and athletically, the Deke House experienced one of its best years. Social festivities got off to a roaring start with a rollicking Homecoming Weekend as the Dukes of Dixie provided the music, and a kegoff, now a Deke tradition, preceded the game with Williams.

Next on the calendar came the infamous toga party which proved to be an eye-opening event and an overwhelming success. It should become an annual fall event at the South Main Street residence. UVM Weekend saw the Dekes close out the fall social season with another big blast.

Varsity captains in basketball and golf, plus a considerable number of letter men were the Dekes contributions to sports. The house held its own in intramurals. A good year at Deke for '55-'56.

Delta Upsilon

1956 is D.U.'s red letter year — this Spring marks the 100th anniversary of the Middlebury chapter of D.U. In celebration of this event the Middlebury chapter will be host to the national convention of Delta Upsilon. The house has been extensively redecorated and the brothers have made preparation to receive delegates from seventy-four chapters throughout the United States and Canada. On campus this year, DU is the proud possessor of the Trophy of Trophies, and we are happy to claim four varsity captains.

The social calendar has included buffet suppers, informal dances and jazz concerts; and don't forget the Barroom Brawl and Halpin Falls.

Members of the house have been active in extra-curricular activities representing Midd in almost all of her activities.

Kappa Delta Rho

The KDR season is divided into "Mud and Snow." During the fall mud season, Rick Raskopf provided us with the Spring Street Stompers of Carnegie Hall fame; in the Spring mud season we expected nothing less than Louis Armstrong, right in our own living room. Fortunately we had blushing Kim Mann as President to restrain Rick from mortgaging the house for the sake of jazz.

When the mud was replaced by snow, KDR quickly turned to the job of putting a few of the Ski Patrol men into an improved physical state. They never quite got into shape, probably because even the smallest piece of Mrs. "T's" chocolate pie contains more calories than Stimson, Rice, Middleton, or Fitzgerald really needed.

Phi Kappa Tau

We got out of the scholastic cellar (New TV set may put us back) . . . The York Award established for the leading intramural bootee . . . Furnace on the blink in December — standing room only by the fireplace . . . House is full of flick artists. . . .

The town is repairing Storrs Avenue by day — we run bulldozer races by night on P.K.T. raceways.

NEGATIVIST CLUB formed — no meetings, no members, no dues, no nothing!

Saturday night tradition — best beans and franks in town . . .

Regan — retired electronics ace — wired the house for Hi-Fi . . .

Free milk and doughnuts — courtesy of Mother McEnaney — for the midnite coffee hour . . .

Many old faces seen during Homecoming — Alumni Association formed for contacts with grads.
Phi Sigma

Phi Sigma, Middlebury's tenth and newest fraternity swung into a fervor of activity in September, outfitting its newly acquired house on Pleasant St. Sandpaper, nails, and wet paint signs were only the beginning of the big job that was climaxed with the overnight installation of the upholstered cocktail bar in the basement. Phi Sig celebrated its first birthday with a sumptuous banquet. Besides getting a good seat on the social bandwagon, the brothers of Phi Sig expended their efforts toward the noble activities of Help Week in the construction of a full-sized replica of a blacksmith shop at the Sheldon Museum. If what already has been accomplished is any indication, a promising future certainly lies ahead for Phi Sig.

Sigma Phi Epsilon

"The Rage" opens the year with welcome back visits to the Forests . . . all settle down to football (indoors and out), varsity and intramurals — winners in both . . . Capt. Philbin and Capt. Hoops end the season discussing relative merits of Varsity and Rinky-dinks, Hooper wins via WRMC . . . Harry, the Gimp, runs the kitchen and his staff — many laughs.

Lunch-time debates on the power of the French in love with Pierre Vuillet and "M. O. GUY" Cote scorned by Mr. Peepers and cronies . . . Pres. Vuillet and Veep Keating run Monday meetings with gavel, and nose and chest protectors.

Winter brings the skiers, led by "Dashing (Once I Had a Secret Love)" Jack Beattie, followed by Burns, Cote, et al . . . Widen and his shadow, Brady, liven up the library . . . Hockey and Basketball are sprinkled with that Sig Ep flavor that only Lenz, Hooper, Woody, and Wags can offer . . . Intramurals again fight it out with the Varsity and Hoops loses to Fusco in an over-weight match.

So it goes at Sig Ep . . . Widen wails, Brady bleeds and the kitchen crew go off to Toga for another meal.

Theta Chi

Five dogs, two cats, and a goldfish, not to mention fifty industrious brothers — that's the way the year started for Theta Chi. Our abode got a new coat of paint and the parking lot got forty tons of crushed marble. Yes indeed, the intramural champs have expounded their excess energy well. To relieve the tensions of renovation and innovation, there was the usual round of superlative social functions including an unforgettable U.V.M. weekend and an unsurpassed Spring Formal. In the Spring Halpin Falls received its share of nature loving "T.C.'s" . . . those that were not making tennis history for Midd, that is. The year ended with two dogs, and one exhausted but satisfied cat.

Atwater Club

In less than a month after its organization, the Atwater Club became an active part of campus life. The fall semester found it completely equipped with a newly redecorated house, dining facilities, and a house mother.

Atwater House opens its membership to all non-fraternity men regardless of race, color, creed, or economic status. The club prides itself on the variety of its program, which is designed to attract the widest possible range of members.

Club members point with pride to a fall social schedule including Autumn Leaves, Spain, and many other weekend activities, in addition, to their number one scholastic standing.
"Innovation" is the word for the Panhellenic Council's 1955-56 activity. Under the leadership of President Margaret Straus and Secretary-Treasurer Charlotte Duryea, Panhell has kept to the fore standards of the national organization — good scholarship, good health, wholehearted cooperation with the College ideals for student life, fine social standards and service to the college community — while attempting to strengthen the position of the Council in Campus activities.

"Dead groups" asserted a Campus editorial, and the Greeks responded with a new and more active social program which emphasized better IFC-Panhell relations. Using Panhell as a sounding board, each sorority considered ways and means toward self-improvement. Discussions gave rise to ideas which were carried into action, such as the sorority open houses for the whole college including faculty and administration.

Meanwhile, Panhell got together with IFC to form a new tradition — a dance for the freshmen, held early in the fall to the music of the Vermonters. Another change came with Santa Claus — replacing the traditional fraternity Christmas parties with joint IFC-Panhell parties for the underprivileged children of Middlebury. There was much discussion of ideas for future Panhell-IFC cooperation.

Then there was the annual sorority serenade for the freshmen and the Cider Cession, a gathering to explain the functions and costs of Middlebury sororities. Foremost in the new ideas area, however, were alterations in rushing. With the schedule cut down to five weeks, there was a great deal of concentrated activity at the beginning of the period. A Panhell formal tea presented the opportunity for freshmen to ask questions about sororities. A fee was levied on those freshmen going through rushing to cover the increased cost of rushing.

Perhaps the major innovation was the Open Smokers that took place after first parties, enabling the girls to visit sororities in which they were interested regardless of previous invitations and also giving the rushees a chance to indicate their preferences to the sororities. "We feel that we have made an important start," says Margaret Straus, "but there are a great many more improvements still to be made."

Alpha Pi chapter of Alpha Xi
Did work in the local nursery,
Heard lectures, saw slides, and took off on skates,
Had parties, and a special dinner with dates,
Had debates and reviews to “develop the mind,”
On barbecued hamburgers royally dined,
Retired to the woods to live like Thoreau,
But a weekend of that was enough, and so
Back in the rooms with real concentration,
We turned our efforts to redecoration.
This is a glimpse of the year as it passed.
It went too fast.

We Tri Delts at Midd pull no punches,
For besides all our dinners and lunches,
We sold so many mums
To home-coming alums
That no field could be seen for the bunches.

We have scholarship aid on the brain
And those thoughts of the Tri Delta train.
We would wear shoes no more
(A new rug's on the floor),
But bare feet are so hard to explain.

The traffic is heavy on Pleasant Street
Where the Kappa Delta sisters meet,
Where friendship, charity and good cheer reign
In the spirit of K D's endless chain.

The work, the laughs, the time spent here
Brings closer ties throughout the year
Through the halls of good old Midd,
You'll always hear it, K D did.

It took us many hours
But at last the rooms were done;
Later came the Pi Phis —
The “Great Debate” they won.

With many trips to Brandon,
Cabin and dinner parties too,
Let’s hope those Resolutions
For New Year all came true!

That good old straight arrow tradition
Has kept us all out of perdition.
We sell orange juice at night,
To our orphan we write
And maintain our unbroken condition.

All agree we have caused a sensation
On our efforts at redecorations,
We’re covered with paint
But bored sure we ain’t.
We think we’ve got quite a creation.

The Sigmas camped out over night
In a Mountain Club lodge—Voter-White.

Football
The great improvement shown by the Panthers between the opening and closing Saturdays of the 1955 season seems to provide the season's highlight. With Seniors Benz, Murdock, Worthington, Morris, and Captain Philbin showing the way, Middlebury compiled a 3-4-0 season, defeating Norwich in a big upset and giving U.V.M. an extremely hard fight.

At Middletown, Connecticut on September 24th in the season’s opener the Panthers dropped a 14-0 game to a good Wesleyan eleven in a game played under extremely bad conditions. The loss of Tirone in a pre-season scrimmage hampered the ground game greatly and this, plus the loss of ace signal caller, Captain Mike Philbin, during the game made the squad’s task all the more difficult.

On October 1st at Waterville, Maine, Midd chalked up their initial win of the year, defeating the Colby Bears 20-18. Floreal Lavin and Pete Cooper sparkled the Panthers, with Lavin gaining constantly through the Bear line and around the ends all afternoon, and it was his long run late in the game which brought the Panther’s victory. Cooper registered the other two touchdowns on short plunges.

Williams College came to Porter Field to initiate the Homecoming Weekend festivities and left the field on the long end of a 26-0 count. Middlebury played a fine first half, holding the powerful Ephmen scoreless. In the second half the line faded, due to lack of experienced reserve strength.

Bates was the next foe of the Panthers and the former wound up on the long end of a 12-7 tally. The Blue and White scored late in the fourth period on a well executed 34 yard pass play from Pete Cooper to Milt Peterson.
On October 22nd, the team traveled to Troy and regained their winning ways by downing R.P.I. 21-0. In this game two freshmen, Jim Ballard and Dick Thomas, stood out, and from this point on the freshmen of the squad were to prove highly valuable in the late season improvement of the team. Thomas opened the scoring, taking an 8 yard pass from Pete Cooper. Then Mike Philbin went 57 yards on a well executed reverse play. Jim Ballard closed the scoring by tallying on a 75 yard punt return. Milt Peterson, John Hall, and freshman Bill Ryan played fine games on the forward wall.

At Northfield, Vermont, on the 29th, the Panthers produced such an excellent brand of football that they upset a favored Norwich eleven by a score of 7-0. Bill Holmes, Pete Cooper, Jim Ballard, and Rog Tirone did some fine running for Middlebury with Tirone scoring the winning touchdown on a 1 yard plunge after Jake Hopkins had recovered a fumble. Mark Benz, John Hall, Jim Witham and Dick Fusco stood out in the line play.

In the season finale at Porter Field the Panthers dropped a hard fought, evenly matched battle to the U.V.M. Catamounts 6-0. Middlebury played their best defensive game of the season, containing the rushes of Beck and company most effectively all afternoon. John Hall played a stellar defensive game and averaged better than 40 yards per kick in the game. Dick Worthington also stood out in the backfield being the team workhorse until he was injured late in the game. Captain Mike Philbin also turned in a fine performance in his last Varsity game, as did Mark Benz.
Football Finals

MIDDLEBURY 0; WESLEYAN 14

Panthers hampered by mud. Unable to get attack started. Wet ball prevents Panther aerial game from working smoothly. Tirone injured, misses opening encounter.

MIDDLEBURY 20; COLBY 19

Panthers register first win showing fine ground game. Lavin gains almost 200 yards and runs 95 yards in closing minutes to score winning touchdown. Cooper also shines as does the defensive team.

MIDDLEBURY 0; WILLIAMS 26

Midd shows up well in first half. Line does excellent job until lack of adequate reserve strength causes them to tire. Tirone and Philbin sorely missed.

MIDDLEBURY 7; BATES 12

Milt Peterson scores on 34 yard pass from Cooper for lone Panther tally. Defensive team plays well and passing game shows improvement.

MIDDLEBURY 21; R.P.L. 0

Squad regains winning ways as Philbin and Ballard score on long runs, while freshman Dick Thomas takes eight yard Cooper pass for other score. Ryan, Peterson, and Hall stand out in line.

MIDDLEBURY 7; NORWICH 0

Panthers upset Cadets by playing their finest game to date. Hopkins recovers key fumble to set up Tirone's plunge for lone score. Tirone, Holmes, Cooper, and Ballard outstanding in the backfield, Benz, Hall, Witham, and Fusco in the line.

MIDDLEBURY 0; VERMONT 6

Panthers play best game of season in Porter Field mud. Worthington plays brilliantly in his last game before being injured; Hall also is defensive bulwark and punts extremely well.
Lacrosse was one of the Spring's most successful sports at Midd. The stickmen, coached by Duke Nelson and captained by Hap Freeman, ground out four straight victories at the year's end before being upended by the powerful Wildcats of New Hampshire.

The lacrossemen returned from a rough southern practice trip and dropped an 11-7 decision to Union, lack of condition making the difference. Dartmouth then hung a 16-4 loss on the Panthers. However, the stickmen were off and running as Dick Worthington netted seven in a 16-2 win over W.P.I. Midd next edged Hamilton, 11-6. Harvard ran into the hungry Panthers and led briefly. But the stickmen took the lead in the second period and bloodied the Crimson by 12-7. Worthington had six goals in the upset victory. The University of Massachusetts was the next to go, as the Panthers rang the bell for the fourth consecutive time in pounding their hosts, 11-4.

Midd's lacrosse squad, with a 4-4 record, was ranked second out of the eight teams in the New England Intercollegiate Lacrosse League.

Soccer

Finishing the season with a flourish, the Middlebury College soccer team wound up with a 4-3 record in their second season of competition. The squad began the campaign with a veteran line and two proven fullbacks. However, the lack of an experienced goalie, coupled with an overall depth problem which was magnified in the halfback slots, gave the Panthers some rough sledding at the start.

The hooters broke out of a lose-win rut when they banged in nine goals to their opponent’s one in sweeping their final two games. Previously the Panthers had spaced 4-1 victories over Clarkson and New England between losses to Colgate (7-0), Union (3-1), and Plattsburg (3-0). During the final week of the season, however, the squad pulled themselves out of the red with two decisive wins. After ripping Albany State, 4-1, Midd traveled to New London and trampled the U. S. Coast Guard Academy, 5-0.

A new coach, Thomas Reynolds, fashioned a well-oiled, smooth-working team out of what seemed like little more than chaos after the first game. Perhaps there was nowhere to go except up, but offense and defense alike pulled themselves together and the team as a whole showed nothing but improvement thereafter. John Nichols took over the goal and allowed only slightly more than one goal per game. Captain Si Marchand and Gil Partch turned into iron men at the fullback slots. Rich Miner proved himself indispensable at center half. Linemen Burt Emory, Kit Cain, Scotty Greer, Ewart Thomas, Otto Albers, and Alex Carley developed into a swift moving, high scoring unit.

1955 was a successful season for the booters, not only in compiling a winning record, but in showing enough pluck to rebound from a poor start.

Basketball

Led by the sparkling play of Captain Tom Hart, Charlie Sykes, Cy Anfindsen, John Hoops, and Jim Wagner, Coach Tony Lupien's courtmen achieved their finest record in years. At the conclusion of the campaign the Panthers' slate showed a final result of fourteen wins as against seven defeats.

The squad launched their season in fine style playing one of their best games in only bowing to Dartmouth's Ivy League championship team by 64-59. Hoops scored sixteen points in a fine performance, while Captain Tom Hart played brilliantly defensively in holding Dartmouth's great Jim Francis to eleven markers while getting twelve himself. The Panthers rebounded to down Union 75-50 and St. Lawrence 80-60. Then just prior to the vacation the squad upset Harvard 50-46 at Cambridge with Anfindsen and Hart scoring fourteen each. AIC then checked the Panther winning streak there in the last game prior to the Christmas vacation 95-73.

In the New England Invitational Tournament the Panthers did not fare as well as they were expected. A tough loss to Colby 58-53 opened the Tournament with the game being decided in the closing seconds. Harvard next gained revenge to the tune of 100-51, with reserve guard Herb Urbach the only Panther in double figures with thirteen. Brown closed out a rather dismal tournament by registering a 80-69 win over the Lupienmen. One consoling fact was that Captain Hart made the all-tournament second team.

After the vacation the cagers picked up steam once again defeating Coast Guard and Vermont 66-61 and 69-61 respectively. Sykes, in probably his finest game in a Middlebury uniform, poured in twenty-five points in leading the Panthers to a near upset of powerful St. Michael's 67-64. Sykes again with twenty-six points led Middlebury to a 67-45 rout of a really strong Williams aggregation. Trinity was the next victim, after a 57-41 win over state rival Norwich, by a score of 76-60. Clarkson bowed to the on-coming Panthers 73-66 with Hart doing some brilliant rebounding and scoring.

Vermont was then brushed aside 73-60, while Wesleyan journeyed here over Carnival weekend to drop a 69-59 battle. On Wednesday night the twenty-third of February came the big return tilt with St. Mikes. In a thrilling see-saw encounter the Panthers lost a heartbreaking 61-59 decision to New England's top small college team. Senior Cy Anfindsen played his best game of the season scoring fifteen points and keeping the Panthers in the game with some brilliant long sets and drives. Finishing the year in high gear the Panthers swept by Northeastern, R.P.I., and Norwich by 66-63, 59-56, and 73-65. In their final game in a Middlebury uniform, Hart, Hoops, and Anfindsen chalked up 20, 22, and 13 tallies respectively.

For the year, Hart, Sykes, Hoops, and Anfindsen averaged double figures with 15.8, 14.0, 11.3 and 10.2, respectively. Jim Wagner also experienced some good scoring nights and provided some solid all-round play in the other starting berth. Hart again led the nation in rebounds, while Sykes displayed great ability as a scorer, feeder, and rebounder. Scotty Greer played some good ball in a reserve capacity as did Ralph Woodbury. Herb Urbach, Jim Evans, and Tom Burr were others who did their bit to make this a great basketball squad.
For the second straight year Coach "Duke" Nelson faced a loss of key players, but still managed to put a good team on the ice which could stay with most opposition. He had to vary his lineup with the loss of regular defenseman Bern Bouvier and Rollie Schopp to come up with a winning combination.

The team opened their season over the Thanksgiving recess, and dropped a 6-2 decision to Michigan State at Canton, New York. Pete Bostwick provided the scoring on assists from Mike Karin.

In a warm-up game the pucksters walloped the Montreal AAA 6-3 with Captain Ron O'Keefe showing the way with the hat trick. The opening Tri-State game against R.P.I. was a closely fought contest at the Field House, but the Engineers came away with a 7-4 win.

Journeying to Cambridge, the Panthers were shut out by a tough Harvard club, 3-0. Two quick goals in the first period were the difference here in a game in which Rollie Schopp and Ken Farrar stood out on defense. The Boston University game, which was to have been played the night before, was canceled due to a car accident which injured Jerry Lenz and Bill Ryan, and took the life of goaltender Buff Bermas.

The pucksters then bounced back to win five straight. They beat Northeastern, Dartmouth, Hamilton, Williams, and Norwich with O'Keefe, Karin, Dollar, and Carley doing the bulk of the scoring.

Army provided a 2-1 upset to snap the winning streak by downing the Nelsonmen in sudden-death overtime.

The rough trip into New York State followed resulting in losses to powerful St. Lawrence and Clarkson. Six goals in the first period killed any chance Middlebury had against the Larries. A surprisingly strong showing was made against the Knights the following night as Midd was outscored 6-2.

The Amherst game was limited to two periods by show, and the Panthers came through with a shutout, 3-0. Ken Kouri provided the scoring punch against the Cadets from Norwich, scoring four times in an easy 5-1 win.

For the second straight year the team lost the Carnival game to Dartmouth. This brawling affair ended with the Indians on top, 6-3.

Ski Teams

The 1955 Middlebury ski team didn't have quite enough to win the big carnivals, but were good enough to finish in strong second places. The margin in the Dartmouth Carnival was a scant .1 of a point, while in the Middlebury Carnival the Indians margin was .4 of a point.

Captain Jack Beattie, a superb four event man, paced the squad and captured skimeister honors at the Dartmouth Carnival. Marcel Cote, another four event man and Norm Cummings were the big men in the Alpine events while Frank Hurt, Pete Lahdenpera and Dave Douglass collected points in cross country.

Coach Bob Beattie who took over when Bobo Sheehan left for the Olympics shaped the team well considering the loss of three of the top four event men from last year's squad. Although the hickorymen did lose grasp of their three year hold on the Eastern Collegiate title their all round performance was bright.

In late March the team plans to send seven men to the NCAA national championship meet at Winter Park, Colorado. The team earned the right to compete in the meet by being ranked among the top five teams in the Eastern Collegiate Ski Association. The Panther team will compete with more than fifteen others in what should be the top meet of the year.

RECORD

| Middlebury Winter Carnival | Second Place |

Although there were only five women on the team, the Middlebury squad showed itself well in their only competition, the Middlebury Carnival, as they finished a strong second place.

Captain Jeanne Hauselmann was one of the best downhill skiers on the team. Mary Hinsman was the most outstanding all round competitor, excelling in both the downhill and the slalom. Deborah Davis, Alita Davis, and Jane Hoge rounded out the squad and contributed vital points.

For the first time in eleven years the team failed to win the Middlebury Carnival. A strong Vermont squad turned the trick by winning both the downhill and the slalom along with the combined downhill-slalom event. Mary Hinsman showed best for the Middlebury women by finishing second in the downhill, third in the slalom, and second in the combined downhill-slalom. Some unfortunate spills hampered the Panther women, pushing them back into second place.

With a top freshman woman in Hinsman and only two senior squad members, the team shows great promise for the future.
When the Pomalift came to the Snow Bowl two years ago this ski area became more commercial and started to attract many more skiers from all over New England. The need for good trails, controlled skiing, and first aid has been handled in fine manner by our Middlebury College Ski Patrol.

The president of this group is Dike Stimson, and working with him are many fine patrolmen. The patrolman is always on the job, looking for any sign of mishap, warning skiers of bad conditions, and at all times ready for any type of emergency.

The ski patrol assumes the responsibility for all students while they ski at the Bowl. It is registered and organized under the National Ski Patrol. Under this organization each patrolman covers a section of the trail. There are also equipped toboggans and field telephones to aid in speedy first aid.

From the work done at the Snow Bowl this year this group should be commended for a job well done, for the students and for the reputation of all Middlebury College.
Track

Coach Brown's cinder squad completed their season with a 2-3 dual meet record recording victories over Norwich and Union while dropping decisions to Williams, Trinity, and R.P.I. Middlebury finished second in state competition behind a powerful Vermont squad.

The loss of Sonny Dennis due to a leg injury sustained in the basketball season took away a big point winner, but the addition of Tom Hart to the team offset this. Hart established Middlebury records in the high jump and pole vault. He also provided the top individual performance by winning both the EICAA and NEICAA high jumps.

Capt Bob Webb placed in the dashes consistently throughout the season while Pete Redman, John Field, Rich Miner, Charlie Sykes, and Bill Holmes were consistent point getters.

Williams provided too much all-around balance in winning 88-47. Tom Hart set his school pole vault record here, and Rich Miner was the only other winner; in the hurdles. Norwich provided weak competition and fell 89-46. Hart gathered 21 points himself by winning three events. Webb and Redman were double winners.

A quadrangular meet at Bates was next, the Midd team placing third behind Bates and Vermont. Hart, Webb, and Sykes were winners. A trip to Hartford resulted in a 59-47 loss to Trinity despite a sweep of the hurdles, hundred yard dash, 220 yard dash, and four firsts for Hart.

The 68-58 loss to R.P.I was another Hart Day as he took four events. Webb and Redman were also winners. In the final dual meet of the season the tracksters won a close one over Union 64-61.
Bad weather delayed the start of the 1955 baseball season for Bobo Sheehan's Middlebury Panthers when the scheduled opener against American International College was postponed but the team swung into action the following week with a three day trip to Massachusetts and New York.

The University of Massachusetts Redmen shut out Middlebury 5 to 0 in the first game and the next day Williams doubled the score against Midd, 12 to 6. Jerry Lenz, a freshman starting his first game from the mound led the Panthers to their first victory of the year, 7 to 2, over R.P.I. at Troy.

In other games, outside of the Vermont State competition, Middlebury edged Union at Schenectady 2 to 1, once again behind the pitching of left-hander Lenz. The Wesleyan Cardinals trounced Middlebury 10 to 3 in Middletown, Connecticut while St. Lawrence came to Porter Field and, using two pitchers to stifle a Middlebury rally in the fifth inning, managed a 7 to 5 win. American International College and Clarkson were the other two non-state opponents. A.I.C. tripped Midd 6 to 4 while the Engineers fell victim to the Panthers, 11 to 2.

In state games Middlebury defeated St. Michael's twice, 11 to 7 and 10 to 7, and Norwich once 10 to 9 in twelve innings. The Cadets were victors in the first meeting of the teams, 8 to 2, when Jim Wagner doubled into left-center field for the only hit off hurler Jim Poach. The Vermont Catamounts beat the Panthers twice, 5 to 4 at Porter Field and 4 to 0 in the season's finale played at Burlington's Centennial Field.

Wagner, playing shortstop, established the club's best batting average with .375 while third baseman Bob Keating, next year's captain, was the only other .300 hitter with a .321 percentage. Lenz played the outfield when not working from the mound and hit .286 and Captain Dick Makin paced the team in runs-batted-in with 12 while hitting .231.

Charlie Smith and Pete Read registered 1 and 4, and 3 and 4 win-loss pitching records. Smith got his win against Norwich while Read beat Clarkson once and St. Michael's twice.

Junior Roger Tirone batted .208 and handled the backstop duties as Tom Seamans and Bill Ellis occupied the other infield positions at First and second base. Cv Anfindsen, when not in right field, also worked at the first sack while freshman Bob Katz gained experience at second. Makin patrolled the outfield with Smith and Lenz, who alternated at center, and Anfindsen in right.

Makin is the only loss through graduation for the team so there will be many veterans returning to the line-up in 1956 and if experience is any factor, Middlebury should have a good chance to better this season's 6 and 8 record.

1955 provided Middlebury’s tennis team with one of its finest seasons in the history of the school. Facing an extremely difficult eleven match schedule the Panthers posted a sparkling 10-1 slate for the season. The only loss was a 5-4 defeat by a strong Dartmouth squad, which was one of the East’s best teams.

The Panthers registered several notable victories, particularly an impressive 5-4 victory over strong Wesleyan, a 6-3 win over Trinity’s fine club, 9-0 defeat of Tufts and Massachusetts, plus 6-3 and 7-2 wins over RPI and Union. The state title was retained by virtue of 5-4 and 7-2 wins over Vermont.

Midd had a very well-balanced squad with capable reserves. One of the season’s highlights proved to be Pete Bostwick’s consistently brilliant play. Bostwick, a freshman, won all of his individual matches while playing number one man, and he and another freshman, Seab Brady, went through the campaign undefeated in doubles competition. Captain Spike Heminway turned in many brilliant performances as did Bill Breed, Bob Beattie, Vern Gray and Brady. The squad suffered three serious losses in Captain Heminways, Beattie and Mal Davidson. The coming season Coach Merriman will have some good veterans plus some good freshmen which should be the makings of another fine team.

The golf team chalked up another fine season in 1955. Victories were registered over such outstanding squads as RPI, Union, St. Michaels, and a tie with Vermont's fine team. The Panthers also retained the state title beating UVM, Norwich, and St. Mikes. John Keresztesy played extremely well in this meet to become co-champion of the state.

The squad was paced by Captain John Kempf, Don Sanders, Joel Hufford, and Keresztesy. These four consistently turned in highly creditable scores. Senior Bud Griffin and Chuck Leonard were others who contributed heavily to the success of the 1955 Panther club.

Four lettermen return in Sanders, Keresztesy, Hufford, and Leonard. Veteran lettermen Jim and John Merwin have returned from the service and along with the new freshmen prospects should aid in the fielding of another strong club.

Women in Sports
Men's and Women's Athletic Councils

Misnamed group of the year . . . no longer celibate . . . the Men’s Athletic Council includes all team captains . . . and the commodore of the sailing club who turned out to be a member of the opposite sex . . . so there she was.

Misnamed again because it does not actually exist as an independent organization . . . forms a part of the all important Athletic Council . . . one of the most unusual organizations on campus . . . in truly democratic fashion combines team captains, team managers, two officers from the M.I.A., seven faculty members, and yet one alumni representative.

The Athletic Council determines general athletic policy . . . rules on general eligibility . . . grants such special permission as extra games by Middlebury teams . . . approves coach’s list of letter awards . . . passes on team captain’s and manager’s elections . . . the group which recently dropped cross-country as a sport . . . established soccer as a varsity sport . . . could all organizations do as well without a penny to their name!

Sweater, sweater, who’s going to get a Midd letter sweater . . . this year’s council has fought valiantly to settle this question . . . and others . . . all due to its forward-looking action in ending the major-minor sports distinction.

“Great work, group!” Miss Tanner’s familiar cry comes out over the volleyball court as Soph’s become champions. And so ends another season of WAA athletics.

Down underneath this racket is where all the mental processes occur — the WAA Council room. ’55-’56 has marked an active year for the council — they’re more organized. Four members drew up a new constitution . . . bloomers and middies have gone out since the last one was written. They revised the point system . . . problems?, yes, no math majors! Other innovations have taken place . . . dorm competition in hockey and volleyball . . . motto: 100% participation. New activities have come out of this council too . . . mixed doubles tennis tournament . . . which was frozen out, a golf tournament . . . also frozen out, a big intramural skiing program. Also new was a big picnic for all participants in the spring, and for all celebrated athletes and managers there was the annual banquet.

Not so new, but even better were our two advisors, Miss Tanner and Miss McGlynn. They together with President Lucy Boyd really put this show on the road.
CLASSES – SEPTEMBER THROUGH JUNE, FOUR TIMES OVER; FROM C. C. TO SEMINAR; THROUGH ORIENTATION, THE SLUMP, THE HALFWAY POINT, TWO MORE YEARS OF WORK AND FUN, AND THEN GRADUATION.
Several days before the beginning of classes, we began to get into the swing of things by participating in "Freshman Week." The Mountain Club outing at Breadloaf, along with the "Midd-Nite" variety show, and the Blue Key sponsored Freshman Dance in McCullough Gym were highlights of the week-long program.

The men quickly learned of the functions of the Blue Key headed by Edward MacDowell. They learned to wear beanies at all times, to avoid Sophomore Walk, and to respect the upperclassmen. Every so often, the Blue Key would hold a nocturnal song fest on the Chapel steps with the men of the class of '59 being the unwilling participants.

The women went through their share of hazing, but in a much more concentrated form. To accomplish this, the Sophomore women supervised an activity called Hell Week.

The men went through rushing first, the fraternities' program being held during the first semester. The women followed suit in the second semester.

This year's Freshman Dance, the first class project, was Greek night, and a resounding success. As the year slipped away, we enjoyed for the first time such events as the A.M.B. Dance, U.V.M. Weekend, the Twenty-fifth Annual Winter Carnival and Junior Weekend.

Pre-A's were a new experience, at first dreaded, but later on just another part of our new life at Midd. Finals were not so easily accepted, although they were soon finished, and the second semester brought with it a completely new start.

Skiing and skating were quickly followed by baseball and tennis. Finals were upon us again. After they were over, we could look back upon a very pleasant and profitable year, and forward to three more like it.
June, 1955 — exams? ... well, most of us are here again. A few have picked up their toys and left ... but most of us have come back to face it all again ... face what? ... what else but SOPHOMORE SLUMP! ... and we weren't left out of the tradition either. We can study harder ... do less socializing ... get worse marks than ever before without any difficulty at all. We managed to get our fingers in every pie ... every one we missed last year we hit this year. Many have graduated from apprentices to supporting roles, and we even have a few heroes thrown in. Soph's begin to take an active part in sorority and fraternity life. This year we're in on the other side of rushing and hell week ... which is worse? Many have become excellent painters, carpenters, and general handymen and repairmen. This shining group is also following along closely in the rather large footsteps of their upperclassmen. Joint council government was initiated with the great approval of both sides of the campus. Under the very able leadership of former leaders Richard Maider and Margaret McCoy, all this took place. The big Sophomore bonanza was their spring outing to Cove Point ... dancing in the dark ... all we needed was rain ... and midnight dinner for two — no, it was a little more involved than that. The female half of the campus continued to participate in the rather worn out tradition of Hell Week, but it was really quite enjoyable for all. The Sophomores had to go to more trouble and do more dressing up than the freshmen ... whose Hell Week was it? On the men's campus don't think the sophomore men didn't take great glee in questioning a freshman on the whereabouts of his beanie. When we get down to the finer things of life we've been getting those too ... numerous engagement rings and pins seem to be sprouting in our class. What else can we conclude from this, but one great year.
The Juniors

The Class of ’57, having dashed through freshman orientation, and sophomore slump, found itself nearing the three-quarter mark. And what a year of innovations this one promised to be! ’55-'56 found the women housed in Pearsons and Center, mixed dorms — a new trend at Midd. After working diligently, our sophomore officers had produced a constitution creating a co-ed form of government to be composed of a mixed council — a landmark in Midd’s undergraduate governmental history. Carried through to this our junior year, the Junior Council breezed enthusiastically off to a promising start, led by Wayne Reilly, its Chairman, and Heather Hamilton, Vice-Chairman.

September and October saw the juniors getting back into the swing of things — pre-a’s and papers, and the junior counselors and the freshmen orienting each other... We started Thanksgiving vacation off with a bang, stamping our feet to the Old Chapel Six, sponsored by the Junior Class, the night before journeying home... With December came the snows, and skiing and skating, and, of course, the big little sister Christmas party... With January came — need we say? — and a preparation for Carnival — anyone ever heard of a “pooey varmint?” In March we all busied ourselves with the coming faculty dessert, which was a smashing success... With April came, not only its showers, but also our “bigger and better than ever” Junior Weekend, chairmanned by Nancy Brown and Hugh Marlow; the Prom was held out at Cove Point overlooking a moonlit Lake Dunmore; the Dukes of Dixie entertained us after the banquet, and on Sunday, Stepsinging, with our four classes in white competing for singing honors... May and our serenade to our senior friends came and went, and June busted out all over, taking with it those who had spent four years among the walls of ivy and paths of beauty. With the three-quarter mark having been reached, there now remains before us only the last lap to be covered, ’56-'57.

It is hard to realize that our four years here at Middlebury are over. Freshman year with its indoctrination and adjustment now seems a vague recollection. Sophomore year remains somewhat vivid in our memory as the year when we first felt that we were really members of a college community. Junior year stands out as the time when we were almost seniors and now, here we are, about to graduate.

Senior year has brought with it responsibility as we assumed our role as the leaders on campus — President of Blue Key, President of Student Government, Co-chairmen of Carnival and Conference, Presidents of the sororities and fraternities. It has also been a year of seminars, of study, but extra-curricular activities and social life have balanced in to make this year one of the most interesting and gratifying times of our college career.

This fall when we arrived as seniors we found it hard to believe that we had finally reached the last year of college. Senior women carried their canes and senior men led Blue Key in their freshmen hazing. Now we realize more fully that this is our last year. We have tried to do everything — skiing, concert lecture series, conference weekends — for we know that this is our final chance as students to enjoy these aspects of Midd life. The Placement Office begins to do a rush business as many of us become aware of the fact that we must work next year.

Comprehensive approach and the dorms quiet down. Books from the past three years are dusted and opened as we try to cram four years of knowledge into our heads.

And now it's June, graduation weekend with Class Day, Baccalaureate and Commencement. We've finally made it and even though many of us may never admit it, we are honestly sorry to be leaving.

“Here we are Midd!” . . . pea-green frosh replete with beanies, name tags, and ROTC uniforms . . . oriented thoroughly, we felt adjusted to college life . . . chapel only once a week and every other Sunday tended to limit “checking,” but ROTC drills presented new and different opportunity . . . our first big weekend, Homecoming, arrived with added excitement — we beat Wesleyan . . . we were introduced by Mortar Board to the faculty through a new institution known as a coffee hour . . . smokers monopolized the male social life and 169 men joined fraternities . . . the UMV game came with a 19-13 victory in our favor . . . and to add to the excitement Ike and the Yankees won too! . . . the sophomores added their bit to our frosh enjoyment with a hop and Scheherazade as queen . . . polls multiplied on campus as interested persons tried to tap public opinion concerning Thanksgiving vacations and pencil sharpeners . . . and can we ever forget our first Carnival with mud and rain . . . needless to say an Artificial Ice Rink Fund was started soon after . . . Meanwhile in the outside world King George III had died and Elizabeth was queen . . . King Farouk had been exiled and as he left President Stratton returned from Saudi Arabia just in time to crown the King and Queen of Carnival . . . in a more educational field Mendelssohn’s “Elijah” was presented by the Drama and Music departments . . . 72 women joined sororities . . . thus having skied our way through the winter with comparatively few casualties we found spring was upon us, bringing with it junior weekend and Charles Laughton . . . the time for decision came as we planned our next year’s curriculum . . . soon finals were a thing of the past . . . how could our freshman year have passed so quickly?
Another year at Midd . . . sophomores now and all-wise . . . quite a change from the Frosh . . . the world about us was changing too . . . the Rutland Rocket was no longer with us . . . the Korean war was over but in Midd another battle raged over the construction of a state liquor store . . . segregation was outlawed by the Supreme Court and liberal thought entered Midd too as chapel regulations were once again revamped . . . and then too Midd Night became co-ed . . . furthermore, we were to have a Thanksgiving vacation and a Religious Emphasis Program . . . but on the whole tradition held sway . . . Homecoming weekend rolled around but unlike the Yankees, we lost our game . . . fraternity rushing came and went giving 152 new fraternity men . . . UVM weekend was the same as always . . . we won, of course, 7-0 . . . Christmas vacation came but was over all too soon and we returned to find that the Playhouse had burned down . . . speaking of fires, remember the soot debate . . . Carnival came at last with its snow . . . and then slush . . . the Ice Show had to be postponed and we lost to Dartmouth but nothing could dampen our Carnival spirit . . . sorority rushing was upon us once again and the conference came and went . . . and having skied our way through another winter we landed with a thud after spring vacation for exams were approaching . . . but then there was the high school fire, Junior weekend and our own musical, "Just Around the Corner," and of course, the Del Magio-Munroe romance, all of which tended to make our spring term more than enjoyable although we heard that the boys weren't too happy about Marilyn . . . finals were over before we know it and we left Midd once more . . . How time flies!
Junior year and almost seniors... we arrive back and are greeted by new innovations; Middle Battell partially finished, the ice rink near completion and the beginning of the new Pomalift at the Snow Bowl... we learn that student wages are to be increased by ten cents and further rejoicing comes when we beat Colby 20-18 at Homecoming... Bermuda shorts are now approved campus attire with a few exceptions... the coke controversy stirs us all to rebellion but soon fades away into the past... Max Kaminsky treats us to an evening of jazz at the high school gym... 143 men pledge fraternities as rushing ends... and then its UVM weekend and a day of gloom as we lose the annual football battle 30-6... plans for a new drama center are drawn up and a fund raising campaign begins... the problem of automobiles on campus comes to a head and action is promised... the new social code is passed and 11 o'clocks granted to seniors... sorority rushing ends and carnival is upon us... a gala weekend with the initiation of the new ice rink but we still lost to Dartmouth... Jane Robinson and Wally Beevers move for integrated student government... conference discusses Man's Changing Image of Himself... the snows melt, the mud comes and it's Spring with its Junior weekend and dating at Otter Creek and other scenic spots around Middlebury... the seniors disappear for a week as they struggle with comprehensives and we realize that our day is not far off... finals come around as usual and then its senior Class Day, Cane Ceremony, the Boat Dance and all the excitement of graduation... we're seniors now but the thought does not impress us for all we realize is that another eventful year at Middlebury has ended.
Our last year ... we're Seniors now ... many changes have taken place in each of our three years at Midd and this year was no exception ... student cars no longer were in constant view on campus as drivers were required to park in the newly created lots ... student apartments were off limits to women students ... Hillcrest had new interior as it became the new language center ... Dean Thurber replaced Lee as acting Dean of Men ... new plans for co-ed class government were put into operation by the Sophomore and Junior classes, and the old plan for integrated student government neared realization ... a new building was constructed at the Snow Bowl to replace the old warming hut that had burned down over the summer ... Phi Sig and the Atwater Club were now established in houses ... but mostly Midd was still the same ... Homecoming came and went and UVM was here soon bringing with it another defeat by the Catamounts, 6-0 ... rushing was over for the men ... the Religion Conference had now become a tradition but still held our interest with topic "The Role of Symbolism Today" ... 6 Seniors were initiated into Phi Beta ... the college literary magazine "Frontiers" reappeared and the botany greenhouse was completed ... Carnival rolled around again and we lost to Dartmouth ... second semester rushing was adopted by the Fraternities to begin next year ... conference discussed "The New Conservatism" and then it was Spring again and 11 o'clocks and cars for the Senior women ... our last Junior weekend came and went and then we settled to the hard task of taking comprehensives ... soon finals were over and it was our Senior Week with Class Day, Baccalaureate, and the Boat Dance ... and then of course there was Commencement ... and we're on our own in the big world.
The Military Ball

Up until May of 1955, R.O.T.C. was strictly a thing for the male side of the campus, with the Women’s College retaining the position of spectator on Veteran’s Day or during a review. When Judy Kirby was named first honorary cadet colonel a new tradition was established at Middlebury. In the fall of this year, this tradition was furthered with the presentation of the First Annual Military Ball. At this formal dance, sponsored by the Guards, candidates for the honorary position, chosen by a faculty committee from a group named by R.O.T.C. companies, were escorted to the bandstand by an honor guard complete with sabers. All the pomp and circumstance of the military were presented, as Gail Knight was named honorary cadet colonel. Lynne Atherton, Barbara Bennett, and Katherine Leetch were, at the same time, presented with certificates granting to them the rank of honorary cadet majors.

Putting together a yearbook is a big project which could hardly be accomplished without the aid of many persons behind the scenes. It is this unseen group to whom we now pay our thanks . . .

Peter Gurwit of the Jahn and Olliver Engraving Company whose help and encouragement made our job a great deal easier and more pleasant.

James Gilmore of the S. K. Smith Company for his help in planning the cover.

Michael Dasho of Lincoln Studio for his excellent photographic work.

Henry Prickett for his helpful advice on the financial matters of the book.

Warren Case for the use of a color photograph and his help in having prints made.

George Finch, Al Hawthorne, Gene Kopf, and Phil Braun for their portographic work.

Bernard Cole and Joe Presbey of the News Bureau for help in obtaining pictures.

The Field House Office for help in captioning team pictures.

Bob Peatfield and the Campus Office for getting us a telephone for the Kaleid Office.

Roommates, classmates, and especially the waitresses of Upper Forest, for help in captioning pictures, supplying snapshots, and their encouragement when things seemed to go wrong.

"Jahn & Ollier Again"

A familiar and reassuring slogan

FAMILIAR... because it has appeared in thousands of the country's finest yearbooks for the past half century.

REASSURING... because those years of specialized experience bring complete service, outstanding quality and dependable delivery to the yearbook staffs with whom we work.
